Dalhousie University Libraries Journal Hosting Service

The Dalhousie University Libraries provide digital publishing services to the University community and beyond. Our focus is making scholarly content openly available to the public. We host both peer reviewed and student journals, as well as teaching materials and book series. The software we use is Open Journal Systems (OJS), a collaborative, open source software project maintained by the Public Knowledge Project. To find out more about our services. Please email.

Welcome to the Seed Lending Library's website!

Access to diverse varieties of plants is important to our community. By selecting and saving seeds from plants which thrive, over generations, we have an opportunity to cultivate a collection of seeds that flourish in our community.
